

A Mural City

Begins!

The Arts Clayton Mural is located on the side of the Arts Clayton Gallery Building at 136 S. Main Street, in historic downtown Jonesboro. The four 12'x12' panels, created by Griffin based artist Shannon Lake, depict stories of Jonesboro in the 1940s-1950s. The panels were inspired by the stories told in the novel Separate Fountains, written by Jonesboro native Patti Wilson Byars.

The mural represents the beginning of what Arts Clayton Executive Director Linda Summerlin hopes to be the first of many in the city of Jonesboro. "Murals are cultural assets which tell a story about our area and collective history. We are very excited to be able to tell these stories, both to the community and visitors alike."

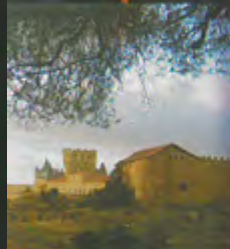

The Arts Clayton Mural project is made possible in part through grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Clayton County Board of Commissioners and the City of Jonesboro. Additional support provided by the Arts Clayton Board of Directors, the Clayton County Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Clayton News Daily and private community donations.
