'It was so much fun and unique – people still talk about it.'

PROGRESSIVE RESTAURANTS' annual general managers retreat is one of only two times each year our managers get together to learn from one another, train & team build.

Our retreat came just after we acquired seven Taco Bells in the Miami area. It was the first time those restaurant managers had met their peers and those of us from the restaurant support center.

All the managers were housed in one building, the Mt. Laurel Inn, featuring full accommodations, high-speed Internet connectivity and a dining/meeting area.

They enjoyed Southern-style food in the Hideaway Restaurant. The group held a volleyball tournament on Forrest Hills' sand volleyball courts and enjoyed nearby canoeing. Forrest Hills' famed "Chuck Wagon Ride" featured a horse-drawn wagon ride to the Riverhouse, steak & chicken cooked on the grill and a bon fire.

It was so much fun and unique – people still talk about it. No one in our party had ever done anything like that before. Forrest Hills was an ideal location for us to do our retreat because of the facilities and seclusion in the Blue Ridge Mountains, which really allowed us to focus on our team-building goals and bring a sense of real camaraderie with our current team and the new Miami team.

The spacious meeting room and outside decks allowed ample room for our small group breakouts. It was a great, fun-filled experience – we look forward to making Forrest Hills a regular retreat destination for our team.
